The next morning, Mr. Nitmans holiday wish came true.

“Attention, students and staff,” Principal Mellon’s voice scratched through the loudspeaker. “Squirm Worms are no longer permitted at Fairview Middle School. It pains me to say it, but those cute little bugs have provin themselves dangerous. As I saw yesterday, their adorable dancing can cause destruction if they get to close to chemicals. Please do not bring Squirm Worms to school anymore. And please never dance near chemicals. That is all.”

That afternoon, Mr. Nitman practically skipped to his car. In the parking lot, he ran into Mrs. Fincher, Eric’s mother. Eric was one of Mr. Nitman’s best students.

“Oh, Mr. Nitman,” Mrs. Fincher said. “I’m just coming from Principal Mellon’s office. Eric told me about the new Squirm Worm rule. He is devastated. you see, a Squirm Worm is all Eric wants for Christmas. He says he’s just about the only boy in school without one and, well, he’s felt left out. I was hoping Principal Mellon might lift the ban so Eric’s Christmas wont be so disappointing.”

Mr. Nitman’s heart sank. As his holiday wish came true, Eric Fincher’s was ruined.
